

SOCIAL RETURN ON INVESTMENT

Social Return on Investment (SROI) is a framework for calculating and communicating social impact using the universal language of money. SROI measures the social value created by an organization’s activities or community initiative by including social, economic, and environmental impacts in a total measure of social value.

FOR EVERY $1 INVESTED THE CCCE GENERATED

 $22.50-25.60 OF SOCIAL VALUE

This dollar amount reflects the ripple effects caused by experiential learning and service learning. After participating in experiential or service learning, students experience short term outcomes such as increased academic success and longer term impacts such as increased likelihood of being hired and earning higher wages. Communities benefit from increased staff capacity and increased resources. Impacts to the university from experiential learning or service learning include cultivating a reputation for student engagement that impacts potential new enrollment.

GROWTH IN VARIOUS IMPACT AREAS

SROI calculates value to three impact areas. Social Value measures impact to individuals and groups of people in areas such as health, wellbeing, safety, and belonging. Economic Value measures impacts to the financial capital of individuals and groups including built capital. Environmental Value calculates impacts to natural systems including energy use, pollution, and preservation of ecosystems.

VALUE OF SELECTED IMPACTS

Each impact is measured by data from participants to indicate how much change took place. Then, the monetary value of the outcome is extracted from scholarly research to illustrate the value of each impact.

"I've been at OU for six years, and I think that this internship was probably one of the most beneficial things that OU has provided me the opportunity to do." -Hannah Wintucky, '21
